CHRIS CASILLAS

Washington State Public Employment Relations Commission
Casillas_adr@outlook.com

Chris Casillas has been with the Washington PERC since 2018 as an administrative law judge, mediator, facilitator, and trainer. In 2020 Chris launched the Negotiation Project, which is an innovative conflict prevention program designed for PERC's clientele that explores how academic theories and research about negotiations apply in Washington state public sector labor relations. Members of the PERC Negotiation Project regularly speak at conferences, conduct a monthly "Lunch Zoom" meeting, and host a podcast called The PERColator.

Prior to joining PERC, Chris was a partner in a small law firm that represented public sector unions throughout Washington State. In addition to his work at PERC, Chris is a member of the adjunct faculty at both Seattle University School of Law as well as the University of Washington Law School. Between the two institutions, Chris teaches a variety of courses on constitutional law, labor law, arbitration law, and negotiations.

In 2021 Chris began a private arbitration, mediation, and training practice, called Casillas ADR Services, and currently serves as a neutral arbitrator in labor cases across the country. Chris holds a B.A. degree from the University of California, Santa Barbara, a J.D. degree from Seattle University and a M.A. and Ph.D. from Cornell University. He lives in Seattle with his wife and two children.

KERRY DAVANT

Executive Director of Human Resources and Labor Relations
Montana University System
Office of the Commissioner of Higher Education
kdavant@montana.edu

Kerry has over 25 years of experience in the Montana executive branch (Dept. of Military Affairs, Dept. of Environmental Quality, Dept. of Labor and Industry, Dept. of Natural Resources and Conservation). Currently, she's the Executive Director of Human Resources and Labor Relations for the Office of the Commissioner of Higher Education of the Montana University System - a title so long it barely fits on her business card.

As a seasoned operations manager who specializes in human resources, Kerry has mastered the art of herding cats, er, fostering trust and teamwork. She's like a relationship whisperer, but for office dynamics. Her superpowers?

Making sure the problem has been identified clearly, being present with others, adapting to the needs of others, giving the benefit of the doubt, asking questions, taking the work seriously but not herself.

Kerry's adaptability, critical thinking, and negotiation skills have proven invaluable in her most challenging role yet: parent to two teenagers. When she's not busy helping to keep the Montana University System running smoothly, Kerry can be found nose-deep in a book, paddle boarding, gardening, or contemplating which armrest is hers at the movie theater.

BARBARA DIAMOND

Kathy Fragnoli has been a full-time neutral since 1994. She provides ADR services nationwide and has offices in San Diego and Dallas. Kathy is a Magna Cum Laude graduate of Boston College and graduated from Gonzaga University School of Law. She attended the Harvard Law School negotiations program in 1995. Kathy was a senior attorney for American Airlines for 12 years and prior to that a Public Defender. She worked as an adjunct professor at the University of Texas, Arlington, teaching graduate level employment and labor law classes. She has conducted over 3,500 employment-related mediations and trained over 4,200 students in ADR. Kathy has served under contract with the Pentagon to mediate high profile cases for the Air Force and regularly trains their JAG officers in ADR and interest-based negotiation skills. She is often asked to act as a facilitator by organizations experiencing internal discord.

In 2022, Kathy was a candidate for Congress, representing the Dallas/Ft Worth area in the House of Representatives. The Dallas Morning News described her as having “a skillset which could certainly be helpful on a polarized Capitol Hill.”

Kathy was admitted to the National Academy of Arbitrators in 2010 and arbitrates labor cases nationwide. She serves or has served on several permanent panels including the Screen Actors Guild (SAG/AFTRA), UCLA and the police departments of Ft. Worth, Houston and Los Angeles.

Ms. Fragnoli is one of 23 mediators in the nation profiled in ADR Personalities and Tips published by the American Bar Association and is the author of Creating Peace at Work: When Work Isn't Working. Her new book What to Say, How to Say It: How Not to Screw Up Life's Uncomfortable Conversation will be published soon. Kathy is the founder of The Resolution Group, a woman-owned business specializing in ADR training.

DR. EDWIN GARCIA
Superintendent
Billings Public Schools
garciavelasqueze@billingssschools.org

Erwin Garcia has served as the Superintendent of Billings Public Schools in Billings, Montana, since July 2023. Originally from Colombia, he has built a distinguished career in educational leadership, previously holding several key roles within the Houston Independent School District (HISD), including Area Superintendent. In HISD, he led 55 schools in high-poverty areas, increasing the number of "A" rated schools from 10 to 30 in just two years. Mr. Garcia also served as a principal, principal supervisor, and assistant principal, each role enhancing his expertise in student achievement.

Mr. Garcia holds a Doctorate in Education from Houston Baptist University. Since joining Billings, his leadership has focused on rebuilding community trust, improving teacher recruitment and retention, and addressing the achievement gap, particularly among students of color and those in poverty. His efforts earned the Billings School Board's trust, extending his contract in 2024 to continue driving progress.

Mr. Garcia has led a strategic transformation of Billings Public Schools, focusing on collaboration, community engagement, and educational excellence. Under his leadership, the district has rebranded and pioneered innovative programs such as Montana's first early college high school, The Opportunity School, The Multilingual Academy, and more. These initiatives have restored community respect and positioned the district as a leader in educational innovation.

Despite facing challenges such as a strained community relationship, COVID-era policies, a budget deficit, and an achievement gap, Dr. Garcia has successfully driven change through extensive community outreach and a clear, shared vision. His leadership has significantly improved student achievement, school safety, professional development, and student support programs.

Mr. Garcia's contributions have earned him national recognition, including the 2024 Superintendents to Watch award and the Montana Music Educators Association's Outstanding Administrator Award. In 2024, he was also featured on TEDxBillings for his work on democracy in education. Through his dedication to educational equity and excellence, Mr. Garcia continues to shape the future of Billings Public Schools, making it a model for regional districts.

RACHEL SCHILLREFF
Field Consultant
Montana Federation of Public Employees
rschillreff@mfpe.org

With over 25 years in the Montana labor movement, Rachel Schillreff has dedicated her career to strengthening unions, advocating for workers' rights, and working collaboratively with administration and management. She believes in fostering mutual respect and shared goals to benefit educators, students, and Montana as a whole.

Rachel began as a librarian at West High before transitioning into union leadership, serving alongside six Billings Education Association presidents and playing a pivotal role in shaping public education. As BEA President during the COVID-19 pandemic, she prioritized member engagement, collective strength, and cooperative solutions that supported both educators and school leadership.

Her approach to union advocacy is rooted in collaboration rather than conflict, ensuring negotiations lead to fair and equitable compromises for all. She understands that strong schools and workplaces thrive when labor and management work together to address concerns and build policies that uplift workers and communities alike.

Now an MFPE Field Consultant for South Central Montana, Rachel continues to represent educators at the state and national levels. She has participated in national and regional union leadership training and served as a delegate for MEA-MFT, AFL-CIO, the Montana Staff Organization, and MFPE.

Her husband, a proud Local #30 Union Pipefitter, shares her commitment to fair workplaces, and their two children attend public school in Billings. Beyond her labor work, Rachel volunteers with the Montana Raptor Center, enjoys painting, and is an unabashed Ted Lasso fan.

Rachel Schillreff remains honored to serve, learn, and collaborate to strengthen unions, public education, and workers' rights.

JENNY WEIGNAD
Field Consultant
Montana Federation of Public Employees

Jenny Weigand serves as a Field Consultant for the Montana Federation of Public Employees, where she represents a diverse range of bargaining units, including state agencies, municipalities, counties, and school districts. Her professional background spans multiple sectors. She began her career as a science educator in two rural Class C schools in Montana before transitioning to the private sector as a Training Director and Environmental Consultant for a small environmental consulting firm. She later moved into human resources within a state agency, where she played a key role in workforce management. In a subsequent position with another state agency, she oversaw call center operations, managed a training department, and administered state retirement systems. As a human resources professional, Weigand received formal training as a mediator in the Conflict Partnership Catalyst process, a method emphasizing collaboration and cooperation in conflict resolution. This approach aligns closely with her advocacy for Interest-Based Bargaining. Jenny spends most her spare time with her husband, grandkids, and two Australian Labradoodles.
